THANKSGIVING PRAYER James Whitcomb Riley

Dear Lord, kind Lord. Gracious Lord, I pray Thou wilt look on all I love Tenderly today!

Weed their hearts of weariness Scatter every care Down a wake of angel wings Winnowing the air.

Bring unto the sorrowing All release from pain; Let the lips of laughter Overflow again. And with all the needy, Oh,, divide, I pray, This vast treasure of content That is mine today!

BETHEL NEEDS More and Better Sidowalks—winter and summer, Rural Fire Protection, Night Watchman-All the Year, Enforced Traffic Rules. Australian Ballot System for Town Meetings.

The voters of the Village Corpo ration will have an opportunity to make the decision next Monday evening regarding the employment of a night watchman or policeman during the winter. For several years a man has been employed in this capacity during the warm weather, and it has been accepted generally as a necessity, both for occasional police work and as an aid to night travelers who frequently require instruction while passing this way.

There seems to be some controversy us to the necessity or desirubility of making this an all year position. There are those who claim that a policeman is a needless expense at any time, especially In the winter. They say he is of little protection from robbery or similar mischief, that the chance of early discovery of fire is negligible, and that at best only a faw of the inhabitants on the main atrects receive any benefit. Othera contend that his work is much worthwhile. Even if few arrests of the night.

It all started about two weeks ago when I wandered in to see Mr. all, our population is small. It Frank Washburn, your Commisioner of Agriculture. I found that eminent and conscientious gentleman very much disturbed. All over the State potatoes were thickér than freckles on your best girl's nose. The price was so low that they were hardly worth the while picking them up. Mr. Washburn wondered if something, no matter how small, could be done about it. He wondered if someone, somewhere couldn't be persuaded to ouy up some of this surplus crop.

Now anything can be sold, and frequently is-including the Brooklyn Bridge. Two things, however, are necessary to do a good selling job—time and money. As it happened, we had very little of either. With both, we could have worked up a demand for Maine spuds in the ous, that none of us can appropriate large centers that would probably have had lasting results.

As the next best bet, we decided to stage a Potato Week in Maine. its object was to try to persuade Maine families to store away a winter's supply of potatoes. In this way, we thought, we could at least move part of the crop that was stored in places endangered by Bothol played a big schedule of the flashiest and steadiest second only 10 errors for an average of the manager and others had to contend. Scribner, that tow-headed boy from Norway won two games without meeting defeat, while Quimby, the A & P gypsy boy, was the most consistent pitcher, pitching in eleven games and winning seven of them. More power to him next year.

Ted Swan, the league's premier catcher, got the most two base hits (9) with Scotty Robertson a close necond with eight. Dr. Hood, that quiet and screne left fielder, lead the field with nine three base hits and again Scotty Robertson was second with five, Ted Swan was the Babe Ruth of the lengue, poling to Fred Scribner, who, in 29 gr

CHAPTER VI

His challenge to Calloway had been good theater, but could he back it up, Gerard asked himself, as a few moments later his car shot into the highway between the two great iron gates set in stone posts at High Ledges. He wanted to reach the show grounds Norman Littlehale, little four before Milly went on for her act, Perhaps he couldn't help her, but if he didn't she might turn to someone not so disinterested as he.

His thoughts turned back to the first time he had seen Milly Gooch, Mer father and mother had hired the old, out-of-repair red brick house for almost nothing and had lived there one summer while out of a circus job, He, at High Ledges from prep school for vacation, had spent every available hour wish the family listening to their stories of the Big Top.

After the Gooch family left the red brick house for the circus, Milly had come each year to visit the Purfers to get "fed up" and some red blood into her, Mother Puffer had told him, He had seen her rarely, but, as she had grown into a stunning looking girl, her long, narrow eyes and her expert use of them had caught Len Calloway. Had it been just an exciting game with her? She had become engaged to him. Next he heard of her he had received a wire:

"ROD. MUST SEE YOU STOP SHOW IN YONKERS SATURDAY

"MILLY GOOOR."

He could recall even his amase. ment at the summons. Why had she sent for him? In that far away summer Walter had been more of a friend than he; he had been fasclusted by her mother. Of course he would go.

He remembered the defiance in her big durk eyes, the whiteness of her face under its make-up, as she

Perhaps it's that newspaper picture of him and Milly Gooch holdin' hands in front of her tent at the circus that come out in the local paper the day after the show was here that got him mad. Well, it here he isn't now! What you gumshoeing round like that for, Roddy?"

Prudence was furious at her own start of surprise. Had Rodney Gerard seen it? He did look troubled. There were lines between his nose and mouth she never had seen before; he had lost some of his bronze, His eyes seemed deeper and darker and bluer in contrast.

"Well, will I pass? Perhaps you weren't sizing me-up, perhaps you were just wondering how it happened that I had caught you, Prue of Prosperity farm." "Don't bite, Rod." SI Puffer flung himself into the breach. "Now that you've got company, Miss Prue, I'll go an' chop some wood,"

He moved away with surprising quickness.

"Mr. Sil" Prudence started after him, but Gerard caught her arm and

"You're not going until you tell me why you have been dodging me." "I dodging! How absurd!"

"Is it? Drop that hammer. It makes you look bloodthirsty." As she still clutched the tool, he loosened her fingers until it dropped to the ground. "That's better. I want to talk to you before Armstrong and Jean get here. Have you seen that infernal picture?"

"Picture?" Prue echoed the word with breezy indifference.

"Don't bluft, You know perfectly well that I'm referring to that fool snapshot of Milly Gooch and me at the circus."

"Oh, that! Really, I'm not interested."

"Look here, you've got to be interested. I'm willing to bet my roadster that Calloway had a hand in that. It would be like his methods-'

"Don't abuse Len Calloway. It satin across the yard. Was would be disloyal for me to listen because"-Prudence hoped that her foot on the step of his car, eyes and voice were as maddeningly provocative us she intended thom to tadster shot out of the parkbe-"because, you see. I've decided to have him cut my timber."

"What!" Never had she seen eyes blaze as Rodney Gerard's blazed in his white face. She remembered what SI had said about his mood the last week. She shouldn't have tried to torment him—but—hadn't that hateful picture hurt her, too? He caught her by the shoulders.

"You didn't mean that, Prue, about letting Calloway cut for you." "Of course I meant it. The more I think of it the more I go bullish

These pesky hens got out yeson the idea. I'm beginning to like and scratched in my garden i Len very much. He's so forceful, There! I'd like to see them

"Forceful!" For a pulsing instant Rodney Gerard hesitated, then he caught her in his arms. "Forceful!" He crushed his mouth, hard, ardent, upon hers. "If that's what you like-Gorgeous-" He kissed her

Prudence wrenched herself free. Every pulse in her body was throbbing unbearably. How had he dared! Was that the way he kissed the circus rider? She dragged her voice you, Dave darling, I wat remain

"Don't ever speak to me ugain! Everl Do you think I'll let you cut my timber now? Suppose Len Callowny does cheat me in money, at least I shall be safe with him." "Peuel You can't do it! You know what you were doing when you looked at me like that. You're no child. Be a sport. You delib erately smashed my control, and now you make me pay for letting myself go. Well, I'll take my medicine, I will keep away until you want me, I'll never kiss you again until you ask me to, it-" "I ask you? That's the fundest thing I ever heard."

"All right, it's the fundest thing you ever heard. But the promise stands, I-" "HII Rod!"

The hall came from the garden, Prudence dashed toward the gate and collided with a big, spectacled man with heart warming eyes. He smiled.

"Miss Schuyler, isn't it? I would recognize you anywhere from Jean's description, I'm 'Jim Armstrong, and I am happy to report that you | contract to cut your timber." Since he come back he's been ter; I have a nice little bunch of money in your wood lot,"

Prudence extended an eager hand. "Have I really! I'm so glad you've come. Now I can learn a lot about trees. Will you take me on as a pupil?"

From the corner of her eye Prue noted with satisfaction the set of Rodney Gerard's jaw. She would show him that he couldn't kiss her after he had been holding Milly Gooch's hands. Jim Armstrong laughed. "Sure

I'll take you along if Rod says the word. He's my boss. I'm a whale of a teacher. Rod said you had a plan of your wood lot, The Hundreds, Miss Schuyler. May I see

"Of course, It's in my shop, I'll bring it to the living room."

Prudence was conscious of Gerard watching her as a few moments later she cleared a place on her brother's desk and sprend out the blueprint. Jean danced in from the kitchen, her hands full of cookies.

She crossed the room to speak to David Schuyler seated in the wing chair. As Armstrong joined them, Rodney Gerard detained Prudence at the desk.

"Wait a minute! Look here, Prue, you didn't mean what you said about letting Calloway cut that timber. You mustn't do It." The sternness of his voice sent tingles through her veins, but she kept her lids provokingly lowered. "I can transact my own business. thank you. When I need beln I shall appeal to Mr. Armstrong. He impresses me as being such a reliable, self-controlled person." "And I'm not. I get you. All right, let me cut your timber and you will have no fault to find with me again-ever-I'll be the original lce man."

He turned on his heel.

As the outer door closed on Armstrong and Gerard, Prudence crossed to the fireplace and head on her hands resting on the mantel looked unseeingly down at the red coals. "Is Armstrong an old friend, Prue?" her brother asked. His tone brought the color to her face. "No. I've never seen him before today. Why?" "You seemed to twinkle, twinkle with excitement when you spoke to

She dropped to the floor cushion beside his chair. "Humorous, aren't you? Perhaps I did rather overdo the welcome to our city act, Dave, but-"

"But It was done for Gerard's benefit, wasn't it? Like him a lot, don't you?" "Like him! No. He leaves me cold."

"What have you against him?" "You said yourself that you were confoundedly sorry that he-he knew that circus clown. Dave."

"It I had any suspicion of him then. I haven't now. I think him one of the finest, cleanest, straightest, most likable men I ever met, and you will admit that I have had some experience." "That's what we thought about Julie's husband before they were married."

"I never thought that. He was irresistible and charming but—he had a bad eye. I tried to make Julie understand, but she wouldn't listen. I never have hared my heart to you before, Prue; never will again. I am doing it now to beg you to listen to your instinct when it sounds its warning toesin."

"I shall never been any man but Prue of Prosperity farm and make your life a burden by camplag on your trall,"

"Go slow. No armor ever has been forged which is invulnerable to love. If you haven't really loved, you haven't really lived. As for having you camped on my trail, wouldn't have pulled through it it hadn't been for you-and I have pulled through. I feel like a new man. I have a brand new outlook. I know now that I got the signals mised, I ausrendered to heartbreak and weakness when I should have accepted them as a challengo."

"Dave! Dave! How murrelous! There's the knneker. Who has come. I wonder. You've had visitors enough this morning, so I'll THE OXFORD COUNTY CITIZEN! close the living room door. A ped-

Prudence opened the front door. Len Calloway confronted her,

Without speaking he passed her and entered the shop. His assurance crisped her voice. "What do you want?"

"Same old answer." Prudence mimicked his diction to an inflection. "I have made arrangements with Gerard to cut it."

"Gerard again. Do you still think he is serious about this woodsman stuff? He—well, you saw that circus rider who calls herself Mademolselle Millee, the day the old clown passed out. Her right name is Milly Gooch. She was engaged to me. Threw me over for Gerard and he-"

"That's a lie like some of the other statements you have made, Calloway." Her tone lashed his color to town one day last week. dark red, hardened his eyes."

"Oh, it is! See this?" He held out an envelope. Involuntarily she read the address. Mr.

Rodney Gerard. "Get that? Now listen." He pulled out a card. "And get this:

Milly.'" "I found that on the floor near Gerard's desk. Now will you let me handle your timber?"

Furious with herself that she had stood like a lump of putty and listened to the note, an unbearable realization that it confirmed her suspicions of Rodney Gerard's philandering roughened the voice in which

Prudence scoffed: "You must be the original if-at- Cross. first-you - don't - succeed-try-lt-again lad. But this time you have thrown sand in the machinery. It won't work. Rodney Gerard and I will get that timber out."

Calloway's eyes burned red. "You and Rodney Gerard! That's a joke. Try to get men to cut. Just try, that's all. I suppose you are trusting to your partner for that?"

Prudence swallowed a nervous chuckle. "You have guessed it, I am trusting to my partner to engage the men to cut. Good morn ing."
